

JAIME STEIGER

Through spontaneity and control, my work shows commitment to line, texture and the internal search of identity. I've created five bodies of work that investigate universal life truths that apply to all of us.

My latest series titled 'Portrait of the Self' explores the unseen self. Thick waves of gesso pour over raw canvas and wood. Graphite and ink gestures appear underneath like bones. Pastel shades from nature float in and around the canvas. Each layer tells a story. Altering them is a way to examine my consciousness and experiences.
